THE HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER. : : : : Editor.

THE meeting of the state committee on exhibits of agriculture and horticulture, of which Col. I. B. Nall is chairman, today and tomorrow, March 5 and 6, will probably be attended by every member. Up to date all but one gentleman of that important body of the World's Fair movement in Kentucky has signified his intention of being present. President A. Y. Ford, of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, has arranged with the Commercial Club of Louisville to have invitations sent to all out-of-town members to attend its banquet at the Louisville Hotel on March 5. This will be one of the swell affairs of the season in the Falls City, several speakers of more than state reputation being down on the program to respond to toasts. Mr. Ford's sentiment is "Kentucky's Resources." He will, of course, take occasion to dwell at length on the opportunity Kentucky has to make a fine display of her resources at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition next year.

THE Morning Herald, of Lexington, last week moved into its new home on East Main street, from whence it was issued as a seven-column quarto in a new dress, the creation of a battery of new Mergenthalers and a Duplex press, which turns out 6,500 per hour. It is now truly a metropolitan journal, and the Messrs. Breckinridge, Wm. C. P. as editor in-chief, and Desha as manager, have every reason to be proud of the success it has attained. Saturday will be a "red letter day," when all the nearby patrons are invited to see the printing of Central Kentucky's greatest newspaper.

A. Y. FORD, president of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, continues to receive encouraging reports from county committees which have been asked to take up with their fiscal courts the matter of an appropriation. It is quite certain now that a large majority of the courts look favorably upon the proposition. As the appropriations from counties will in all cases be for needed exploitation and expenses incurred in furnishing and advertising the county products and resources in conjunction with the whole state exhibit, no objection can be raised.

AT AN important meeting of the miscellaneous corporation committee of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, it was decided to recommend to the general finance committee that 20,000 souvenir buttons be ordered, bearing the Kentucky Building with an appropriate phrase, and to be sold at one dollar each. The general committee will likely approve the plan. Beneath the building will be the words: "It's part mine!"

CHAS. O. PROWSE, an attorney of Hopkinsville, has written to the Kentucky Exhibit Association that he can furnish for the Kentucky Building a rough frame of Jefferson Davis' birth-place, made from the timbers of the old home site in Christian county. He also offers the association a pen and ink drawing, 12 by 18 inches in size, of the birth-place.

A WALKING cane made by Aaron Burr, on the head of which is Burr's own likeness, cut by himself, is one of the interesting relics in the possession of Bertha E. Hopkins, of Franklin, which she has brought to the attention of the Kentucky Exhibit Association with the intention that it be placed in the Kentucky building.

THE coal operators' committee has adopted a sliding scale on which to ask subscriptions. It will bring over $10,000 to the Kentucky Exhibit Association's fund. Contributions will range from $25 to $500.

COL. T. T. HEDGER,

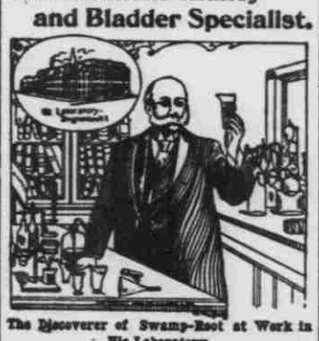
Of Georgetown, Announces His Candidacy for Commissioner of Agriculture.

GEORGETOWN, KY., March 1, '03.
TO THE DEMOCRATS OF KENTUCKY:

I beg to announce to you my candidacy for the office of Commissioner of Agriculture, subject to the will of the Democratic voters at the primary to be held May 9. The short time intervening before the election renders it impossible for me to cover all of the state. I desire to state that I have been for years and am now a practical and active farmer, and that all of my interests are dependent upon the success of the farmers. I am in thorough sympathy with all matters pertaining to the advancement of the interests of the agricultural classes of the state, and, of course, in our commonwealth it is well known that the success of all other lines of business are dependent upon the welfare of the farmers. If nominated I pledge my best efforts to use the Department of Agriculture in the interest of the farmers and the general welfare of the commonwealth.

I have at all times been an active and consistent Democrat, I am profoundly grateful to the Democrats of Scott county, who have twice honored me with the sheriff's office without opposition in the ranks of my own party. I have always been found in the thickest of the fight for Democratic principles, both state and national. I have served four years as a member of the State Central Democratic Committee, representing the Seventh Congressional District, and feel that I can point with pride to the success of the Democratic party in my district under my direction. In these times of great combinations of capital and trusts, no one feels more keenly the direct results of their unjust oppression than the farmers of the country, and I pledge you if nominated to use the office to resist the oppression of all trusts and to stand fighting for the interests of the agriculturists. If you nominate me I pledge all of my energy and strength to the success of the party in November, when we must meet the enemy, the Republican party. Having had many years experienc in business and farming, you will not be placing the office in the hands of an inexperienced man, and I pledge the same care to the interests of state affairs that I have devoted to my personal affairs.

The Eminent Kidney and Bladder Specialist.



The Discoverer of Swamp-Root at Work in His Laboratory.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the new discovery is the true specific for kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It has cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases, after all other efforts have failed. At druggists in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. A sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling about Swamp-Root and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Department of Agriculture was founded for the interests of the farmers, and in my humble opinion ought to be managed by a practical and real farmer. My county, SCOTT, has not had a candidate for a STATE OFFICE for 25 years, and being a strong and reliable Democratic county, I feel that I can appeal with confidence to my fellow Democrats all over the state.

I ask for your hearty support and encouragement, and whether successful or not in my ambition to be your Commissioner of Agriculture, I pledge at all times my hearty support to our common cause, Democracy, the only refuge for an honest and patriotic people.

Very sincerely,
T. T. HEDGER.

IMPORTANT CHANGE.

Henry Watterson's Courier-Journal Announces a New Policy.

During three decades the Louisville Courier-Journal has stood unalterably and conspicuously before the public as the representative of the great commonality of the people against both the Robber Baron, seeking through the accreation of ill-got money to steal away the people't liberty by stealing away their franchise rights, and the ready-tool of the Robbor Baron, the bandit politician, masquerading as a statesman and patriot the better to serve the ends of his master. In fulfilling this high function it has sometimes had to go fast and sometimes to go slow, sometimes to cry "onward," and sometimes to cry "halt," sometimes to drive at the root of things, and sometimes to drive ahead; but never changing the direction of its movement and always true to the underlying principle of its being, expressed by the simple demand for "The Greatest Good to the Greatest Number."

With the advent of the new year, that is on the first of January, 1903, the Courier-Journal began a campaign from which it looks for commanding results, and the better to reach the objects it has before it, the twice-a-week edition was changed to a once-a-week edition, returning to the old Weekly Courier-Journal, which for a quarter of a century was literally a political bible to millions of Americans who knew they could trust both its prescience and its disinterestedness.

The new Weekly Courier-Journal is modern in every respect, and is a paper for the home. It is issued every Wednesday, and its 10 or 12 eight-column pages are filled with the best work of the best writers. The price of the paper is $1 a year, in advance, and it is well worth it.

By a special arrangement with the pubiishers of the Courier-Journal you can get that paper and THE HERALD one year for only $1.25.

A Big Improvement.

Dr. Center's property on South Broadway has been vastly improved by new crushed brick sidewalk along its entire front, and pedestrians who travel that way, school children attending the academy especially, are loud in commendation of the enterprise.

THE GREAT AMERICAN SERIAL

By DAVID H. DODGE.

"MR. 'OPKINS!"

It was the voice of the proprietor of the Monocle, the new weekly publication that had been started in London, which spoke, and it was the managing editor to whom the owner addressed himself.

The said owner was Mr. John Broadwood, a middle-aged, stoutish and pompous person with strong business instincts. He had made a fortune in trade, and had decided to increase the same by running a paper. He knew himself to be incapable of doing so directly, but he believed his young friend Hopkins could do it.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Hopkins, "here."

"Mr. 'Opkins," said the proprietor of the Monocle, "don't you think it would be a good idear if we was to 'ave an American story in the paper? There's lots of Americans livin' in London now, and I think we ought to cater to 'em. What do you think?"

"I think, sir," said the managing editor, "it is a very good idea indeed. A very good idea."

"Well, then, 'Opkins, go a'ead, as they say in the states, and write one. You know 'ow to do it, don't yer?"

"Well, sir, I think I do. True, I have never yet visited America, but I have read a good deal of American literature, such as it is, for it isn't anything as good as ours, and I can easily get a friend of mine who has been there to verify any trifling errors I may make."

"All right, 'Opkins. Let's 'ave the first installment next week."

So Mr. Hopkins wrote his great American story. The first installment appeared in due course in the Monocle, and created a decided stir among the Americans in London, who awaited the chapters in the following issue with so much eagerness that that number was completely sold out. There was no third installment, and it might be proper to say that there would have been no second installment had it not been that the edition was printed before there was any time to make a change.

It is impossible to reproduce all of the novel which appeared in the Monocle, but a few selections may be made to show the nature of this thrilling piece of fiction:

CHAPTER I.

It was a cold, gray, gloomy day in the month of September in New York, and Arthur Daere, as he turned into Broadway from First street, felt in his heart that the weather accorded well with his bitter feelings. The rattle of the Broadway elevated trains overhead disturbed him not at all. Being a born and bred New Yorker, he was used to the noise.

He had just been rejected by the haughty beauty, Gladys Baltimore. She had led him on at first, and allowed him to think that he was the most favored of her many suitors. She had encouraged him to drop in the parlor of her palatial Sixth avenue home, near the corner of one of the most exclusive side streets, which the Americans call "Grand," almost every day to five o'clock tea. Then, when at last he took his courage in his hands and asked the all-important question, she had refused him, and not kindly. In fact, she had intimated that her fortune and not herself was the principal object of his solicitude.

It is true that Gladys Baltimore was very rich, or, rather, that her father was. Old Bertram Baltimore had been born in the little town of Michigan, in the state of Detroit, and amassed a fortune early by striking oil there. He afterward purchased wide tracts of land in New Jersey, where he cultivated the cotton plant and owned more than a thousand slaves, for this was before the great war of the rebellion of 1873, when the intrepid south stamped out the snake of slavery and conquered their northern brethren on the field of Gattyboy.

Thinking of all these things, what wonder is it that Arthur Daere felt his head swim as he strolled down Broadway, with his pipe in his mouth? But, bethinking himself of an appointment with his solicitor, he hailed a passing bus.

CHAPTER IV.

"I think Trevelyan will be elected!"

"No fear. I am positive McMasters will!"

"I bet you two dollars Trevelyan will be our next president!"

"Done! Two to one, bar one!"

It was the night before election day. The cool ocean breezes swept over Rhode Island, the summer watering place of New York's lower classes, and made a welcome finish to the hot July day. The next morning the whole American nation were to cast their ballots for a new president, and excitement was in the air.

Small groups of men, in two and threes, were seen everywhere, all of them with loaded revolvers in their hands and chewing gum or tobacco, as is the custom of the Yankees at this critical period.

The fashion of electing a fresh president every three years seems very strange to an Englishman, but the ruling classes of the United States are much averse to receiving advice from the more experienced John Bull, and we will therefore not indulge in any criticism.

Suddenly a figure jumped up on an old barrel near by and addressed the crowd with great vehemence. This was none other than Mr. Trevelyan, the present president, who was desirous of reelection. He had already been elected four times, but he was too fond of power to resign his seat.

"My friends," he exclaimed, in a strong American accent, "the time has come, I guess, I reckon, to consider the sitiwation. Air we gwine ter continny the policy what has been so successful durin' the past years? Air we, I says. Yes, Sah! Yew kin bet we air!"

At that moment an interruption arose and several shots were fired.

CHAPTER VII.

The court hall was still and all eyes were turned on the prisoner, Arthur Daere, accused of attempting the life of the president of the United States.

The judge, with his wig on one side and his legs up on the table, stopped for a moment whittling the piece of wood in his hands and glanced at Daere. Then he expectorated on the ceiling and seemed buried in thought.

What would be the prisoner's answer to the pointed question of the keen-eyed barrister?

This was in the state of Columbia, of course, where all law cases are heard in America.

Even the hostile audience in the room felt for the accused. "I'm blowed if it ain't a bully shame!" was heard more than once.

Suddenly a strange thing happened. A slight female figure was seen to be hastily making her way to the side of the prisoner.

"'Tis me—Gladys Baltimore!" she muttered, as she threw her heavy veil aside, displaying her abundant chestnut hair done up in a bun.

But that is just where the author made his last and greatest mistake.

"I think me and you had better part, Mr. 'Opkins," said Mr. Broadwood, one morning. "All them Yankees in London is a larfin' at us and the story what you wrote. 'Ere's your week's celery, six pounds six, and my word of advice to you in the future is—"

But what does the advice of such an unjust employer as Mr. Broadwood matter?—N. Y. Times.

SONG OF THE DERELICT.

When the hour is gone, and the leaf grown brown,
Its green delight over—far better be down!
Well if the wind come then, and deliver
The leaf to the earth or the sea-going river:
What should it do there, outliving its day?
Well if the wind come, and blow it away.

For a leaf I have seen, still left, withering on Between the wind and the wintry sun,
Wrinkled and withered—shaming the hour
When the beech-tree was proved and the birch in flower:
What, said I, avails it, outliving its days?
Well if the wind come, and blow it away.

Well if the wind stoop down in its force,
When the life is lived out, for better or worse,
Good Lord, I pray now, take thought and deliver
Old age in its time, as the leaf to the river:
What should it do there, outliving its day?
Well if the wind come, and blow it away.
—Ernest Rhys, in Pall Mall Gazette.

SCIENTIFIC LUCK.

A Variety of Clover That Has Normally Four Leaves Produced by Dutch Expert.

The botanical papers report that De Vries, the great Dutch experimental evolutionist, has by long-continued selection produced a variety of clover which has normally four leaves. Thus it is that science contributes something daily to the increase of human happiness and good fortune, says the Independent. How many hours we have spent on our hands and knees searching for the lucky leaf. Even yet some of us always walk across a clover patch with downcast eyes and are arrested by unconscious cerebration at any indication of quadruplicate foliation. Now we can buy our own luck at the greenhouse, provided, of course, we are lucky enough to have the money. The disparity of fortune, an evil already so threatening to our social and political life, will be increased by this new discovery. The rich man can buy his four-leaved clovers, even his five-leaved and six-leaved clovers, and roll in them, while the poor man will still have to hunt long on the lawn for even a little luck, and then he is likely to be told to keep off the grass. His only hope will be for the new variety to escape from cultivation and grow like the Russian thistle by the sidewalk. But by that time the millionaire will doubtless have eight-leaved clovers in his conservatory.

SELF-CURED NERVOUSNESS.

The Patient's Will Can Do Much Toward Curing This Annoying Affection.

"Self-control as a cure for nervous diseases is a remedy more efficacious than medicine at times," said a prominent Washington practitioner, according to the Star, "and since its exercise is a matter of mere habit, I will tell you about it.

"'Nervousness' is a disease, and nervous persons, especially women, are a torture to themselves, an object of pity on the part of some and of contempt on the part of others. Nervousness in itself, nervous prostration in its various stages and the different forms of nervous fright and irritability largely result from persons allowing themselves to yield to certain channels of thought which have fear as a basis.

"It makes slight difference what this element of fear may be, whether the loss of money, of a beloved one, position, or what else, the subject nurses this dread little by little, until except in the case of a sudden and powerful shock, imperceptibly, but with insidious certainty, the nerve centers feel the strain and gradually give way. The subject begins to suffer loss of appetite, sleeplessness intervenes, loss of flesh necessarily results and a whole train of evils follows in rapid sequence, from becoming a burden to oneself, family and friends in going around in a perpetual state of nervous irritability or melancholia, to complete collapse in bed from nervous prostration.

"While patients will yield to medical treatment in some instances the beneficial effects of sedatives or tonics are often neutralized by the patient refusing to exercise self-control and in nursing the particular trouble which may be preying upon the mind. When expostulated with the invariable reply is: 'I can't help it.'

"Persons of nervous temperament and in various stages of nervous diseases will be astonished to see how quickly the physical will respond to a determination of the mind not to yield to certain lines of familiar thought which constitute the subject's troubles. They will find that the brain may be said to be a creature of habit, in that certain lines of thought will force themselves and often at certain times of the day more prominently, as in the morning. Endeavor to develop a feeling of 'don't care,' and maintain it. Once the subject determines to curb and control thought the brain will be found to yield to control, slowly at first, but surely when the subject persists as much as his or her feeble will power allows in 'not thinking about it.'

"To aid in this great fundamental cure of nervousness and nervous troubles travel largely conduces, because, as simple as it is, when persons travel they have to do things they do not wish to do, entailing a change of thought, consequent relaxation of strain of the brain cells, more or less physical exercise and a change of air and scene.

"Fifty per cent., perhaps more, of nervous troubles are aggravated and prolonged by remaining amid familiar surroundings and among the immediate members of the family, where their weaknesses, often silly and foolish, are coddled and humored, until the subject believes himself or herself desperately ill or finally develops a real disease.

"If nervous people who have not reached this stage only knew what a nuisance they are and how readily their irritability would disappear if they would hold themselves up to their irrespective vision, determine to control themselves and not allow their whims, habits or snappy tempers to control them, they would become prettier and stouter women, and stronger and better men. They would find that self-control is a habit, as it becomes a habit for women to nag, fret or show temper, and for a man to feel that he is perpetually going to lose his position, or suffer loss in his business.

"One must persevere in the self-control cure for nervousness, but once the nerves are whipped into mental subjection patients gain flesh and strength and wonder how they could have been so weak. The legend to be inscribed upon the nervous person's banner is short, but effective—'don't yield.'"

UNAPPRECIATED ARBITRATION.

Mutual Friend Tries to Reconcile Quarreling Lovers and Is Squelched by Both.

The lovers had quarreled.

"I'll never speak to you again!" she cried.

"Perhaps you'll give me back my ring," he retorted, scornfully.

"I wouldn't wear your old ring for a thousand dollars," she asserted.

"This is the end," he said.

"Wait a minute," interrupted the mutual friend. "Don't forget that these are the days of arbitration, so let's arbitrate this affair."

"He's entirely in the wrong," she insisted.

"It's all her fault," he replied.

"Well, let's have a statement of the case from each side," said the mutual friend.

The girl thought it over, and her face grew red.

"If I tried to put it in words," she said to herself, "I'd be posing as a little fool."

Somehow her grievance wasn't tangible, says the Buffalo News.

The youth thought it over, and he began to feel uncomfortable.

"I'd be a jackass to try to explain this thing to a cold-blooded mortal," he said to himself.

"Well, let's hear what it is," said the mutual friend.

"Nothing," said the youth.

"Not a thing," said the girl, "and I'd like to know what business it is of yours, anyway?"

"If you annoy my fiancee any more," said the youth, "I'll break your head. Here's your ring, Gracie."

"You're so good to me, Ralph," said the girl.

"Go away, can't you?" they both said to the mutual friend.

THE REASON.

I've often sat here and wondered
Whatever the reason could be
That, no matter how naughty I've been to her,
Mamma's always so good to me.

To-day when my very best doll tore her frock
I punished that child most severely,
And locked her up in a cold, dark room,
Till she should repent sincerely.

But after I'd turned the key in the lock
I felt so unhappy, and sorry, and sad,
That I just had to bring her right out again,
For I loved her though she was so bad.

Then it came to me all in a minute,
As I rocked my doll on my knee,
That mamma is only a great big girl,
And her very best dolly is me.

GOOD HAZING STORY.

Night Expedition of Sophomores Had a Blessed Purpose and Is Without a Parallel.

The best hazing story of recent years is now going the rounds of the press, credited to Frank Hinkey, Yale, '94, the famous left end of Old Eli's football team of that year.

"It happened," he remarked, "in 1892. Some sophomores noticed that two poor country boys had begun their housekeeping in a room on the ground floor of one of the college halls, with a miserable apology for a bed, no carpet, no table, and only two chairs as the sum total of their outfit. They proposed to board themselves, but had only a few dollars for their food during the term. They expected hazing and were not disappointed.

"One night, the trembling youths were summoned by a sophomore, who was not overcourteous, to go to a room upstairs. They obeyed, pale with fear. They were detained about an hour, but were only quizzed by the circle of students in the room. They then were released. Entering their own apartment, they were dazzled by a new carpet, a tasteful bedstead, fully equipped, a study table, easy chairs, a handsome drop lamp, a bookcase partly filled with books, a stove, pictures on the walls, rugs, etc., while in a closet were enough provisions to last a week.

"That," declared Hinkey, in closing, "was hazing to a blessed purpose, but, alas! I fear it has no parallel."

WRITE YOUR OPINION.

A New Winter Evening Game for Girls Which Affords Bushels of Fun, If Properly Conducted.

New games are things that every boy and girl is looking for, and not only games that you have never played yourself, but games that not many other people have played, either. Here is one that ought to suit a good many of you. It is played something the way "consequences" is played—that is, with paper and pencil. Each person is given a piece of paper and a pencil, and is told to write her opinion of somebody; one whom every one who is playing the game knows, if possible. This opinion need not be elaborate or long. You need only say: "The person I am telling my opinion of is"—and then just put down a few adjectives, such as jolly, pretty, witty, lazy, inventive, and so on, making them as long as you please. You must have at least three descriptive adjectives. Do not put either your name or that of the person you are writing about on the paper, but when you have finished fold your paper so that what you have written cannot be seen, and pass it to your left-hand neighbor, who in turn passes hers on. On the new paper you have had passed you, without looking at what is written, write the name of the person you think that your right-hand neighbor would have been most likely to describe, and then when every one has done this put all the slips of paper in a pile in the center and in turn each draw one out, saying: "This is thought to be the opinion of," and then read the name on the paper. Open it and read the opinion. If it happens to be the opinion you wrote put it back without reading aloud and take another. When you have read it you have the privilege of making one guess as to whom the opinion is really intended for, and if you guess right the one who wrote it must acknowledge it and say whether right or wrong, and if right pay a forfeit. Each one reads one of the opinions and has the privilege of one guess. After that is over you can redeem the forfeit.—Prairie Farmer.

Danger for Deep-Sea Fish.

It is dangerous for a fish whose natural home is at great depths to get out of its stratum. Should it get out of its depth there would be a sudden upward suction and the fish would be drawn to the surface and explode. The interior pressure of the body counteracts the outward pressure under normal conditions, and when the latter is removed there is trouble.

PINKY'S PREFERENCE.

The Story of a Pet Possum Which Refused to Stay in the Woods When Taken There.

Most wild animals stoutly resist all of our well-intentioned efforts to bring them up in door-yard ways, and take to the woods again with the first opportunity. I have tamed many squirrels, but, sooner or later, every one of them has escaped to the wilds. I have never known but one wild animal that wanted to be domesticated, that refused to stay in the woods when taken there; and this was a little possum, named, from the color of his long nose, "Pinky."

He was one of a family of nine that I caught, several springs ago, and carried home. In the course of a few weeks his brothers and sisters were adopted by admiring friends; but Pinky, because he was the "runt," and looked very sorry and forlorn, was not chosen. He was left with me. I kept him, for his mother was dead, and fed him on milk until he caught up to the size of the biggest, mother-fed possum of his age in the woods. Then I took him down to the old stump in the brier-patch where he was born, and left him to shift for himself.

Being thrown into a brier-patch was exactly what tickled "Br'er Rabbit" half to death, and anyone would have supposed that being put gently down in his home brier-patch would have tickled this little possum still more. Not he! I went home and forgot him. But the next morning, when breakfast was preparing, what should we see but Pinky, curled up in the feather cushion of the kitchen settee, fast asleep.

THE STUMP IN THE BRIER PATCH.

He had found his way back during the night, had climbed in through the trough of the pump-box, and had gone to sleep like the rest of the family. He gaped and smiled and looked about him when awakened, altogether at home, but really surprised that morning had come so soon.

He took his saucer of milk under the stove as if nothing had happened. We had had a good many possums, crows, lizards, and the like, so, in spite of this winsome show of confidence and affection, Pinky was borne away once more to the briers. He did not creep in by the pump-box trough that night. Nothing was seen of him, and he passed quickly out of our minds. Two or three days after this I was crossing the back yard, and stopped to pick up a big calabash-gourd that had been on the woodpile. I had cut a round hole, somewhat larger than a silver dollar, in the gourd, intending to fasten it up for the bluebirds to nest in. It ought to have been as light as so much air, almost, but instead it was heavy—the children had filled it with sand, no doubt. I turned it over and peeked into the hole, and lo! there was Pinky.

How he ever managed to squeeze through that opening I don't know, but there he was, sleeping away as soundly as ever.

But that's just like him—always a puzzle. He is most stupidly wise or most wisely stupid.

And what became of him then? My heart smites me whenever I think of it. I took him back again to the woods the third time, and again he returned, but blundered into a neighbor's yard, and—and a little later he was drawn up in a bucket of water from the bottom of that neighbor's well, still asleep, only—they could not wake him up.—Dallas Lore Sharp, in St. Nicholas.

Athlete Fights Huge Lion.

Archie B. Lueder, a well-known athlete of the class of '99 at Cornell, and who is now stationed in equatorial Africa near St. Joro, recently had a hand-to-hand battle with a huge African lion, in which some of the things Lueder learned on the Cornell gridiron came into play. Lueder and a man named Smith were out surveying, when unexpectedly a big lion sprang from the jungle. The rifles which they carried were of small caliber and the lion paid no heed to the shots fired at him. Finally, the beast sprang upon Lueder, who thrust the muzzle of the rifle in the lion's mouth, while his companion was able to dispatch the lion by shooting the animal through the heart. Lueder was terribly lacerated by the lion's claws and has just gathered strength to write his brother, C. A. Lueder, now also a Cornell football player.

Lamps That Talk or Sing.

Electric lamps can not only be made to talk, but also to sing. An ordinary arc light can be made to produce sound by placing the arc in the circuit of a telephone instead of the ordinary receiver or instead of the ordinary transmitter. In either of these positions it will pronounce words, which can be heard distinctly at a considerable distance. It naturally follows, also, that the electric arc can be utilized as the receiver and also as the transmitter of the telephone.

Remarkable Plant Growth.

Some tropical plants can really be seen to grow. An eminent scientist, who has been making measurements in the botanical gardens at Buitenzorg, Java, records a growth in a bamboo of 17 inches in a single day. Another bamboo was observed to add eight inches to its height daily for 38 days, while two others grew four inches steadily for 60 days.

Constipation Will Undermine Your Health.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.

When the sewer of a city becomes stopped up, the refuse backs into the streets where it decays and rots, spreading disease-creating germs throughout the entire city. An epidemic of sickness follows. It is the same way when the bowels fail to work. The undigested food backs into the system and there it rots and decays. From this festering mass the blood saps up all the disease germs, and at every heart beat carries them to every tissue, just as the water works of a city forces impure water into every house. The only way to cure a condition like this is to cure the constipation. Pills and the ordinary cathartics will do no good.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC

is a crushed fruit tonic-laxative

which permanently cures the affliction. The tonic properties contained in the grape go into every afflicted tissue and creates strength and health. It will quickly restore lost flesh and make rich, red blood. As a laxative its action is immediate and positive, gentle and natural. Mull's Grape Tonic is guaranteed or money back.

THE THEATER TALKER.

An Intolerable Nuisance Quickly and Quietly Suppressed by a Little Wit.

They had been reading a Rolfe annotated edition of the play, and there was nothing in "Julius Caesar" that they were not perfectly familiar with. Before the performance was half through there was nothing that they knew which everybody within half a dozen rows did not hear about; for among the three of them—a man and two women—there were such capacities for superfluous conversation as are met with nowhere except in a theater, says the New York Mail and Express.

In tones that alternately hissed and brayed and rasped till spinal columns all around them ached they told one another that Antony was much better done than Brutus, that Portia would come on in a minute in the garden scene; that Casca was supposed to be a gruff old Roman; that Caesar usually did have fits—think of it! that is as a pity (this in a whisper that shivered far down the aisle and splintered at least a score of vertebrae) Roman ladies didn't wear corsets. So on, ad nauseam.

At last the ghost and the distraught Brutus met and there was a thrilled silence in all the crowded house save in row Q, where a strident voice complained:

"I can't hear a word the ghost says. Why doesn't he speak louder?"

A man behind the querulous disturber, quite beside himself with rage, leaned forward and said in tones as courteously sweet as the sting of a honey bee:

"Perhaps the ghost is a gentleman, and does not like to annoy people."

Which, of course, was very rude, though it did fill many hearts with an unholy joy.

SHE WAS AHEAD.

When It Came to Ornamental Letters on Packages Her Father Had Theirs Beaten.

An uptown reader tells of the "break" made by a little tot of the family who was one of a party of little girls at a recent strawberry festival in the vicinity of her home. She had been valiantly boasting of the manifold advantages of belonging to her family, and had managed to hold her own against the vainglorious and ingenuous discourses of her companions, relates the Philadelphia Times. They had gone from clothes to personal appearances, then to interior furnishings, then to the number of tons of coal consumed in the home of each during the last winter, and finally brought up at parental dignity. The minister little girl boasted:

"Every package that comes for my papa is marked 'D. D.'"

"An' every package that comes for my papa is marked 'M. D.'" retorted the daughter of a physician of the neighborhood.

Then came a fine snort of contempt from the heroine of this anecdote. "Huh!" she exclaimed. "Every package that comes to our house is marked 'C. O. D.' There now!"

2,000 Years Old.

"A lawyer and a doctor were conversing. The doctor said: 'Your profession doesn't make men angels, sir.' The lawyer answered: 'No, it is yours which does that.' The anecdote is 2,000 years old," said Dr. Keen, "and is reputed to be the parent of all the myriad of medical anecdotes that now exist."

VIRTUES OF THE ESKIMO DOG.

An Invaluable Servant and Food Reserve to the People of the Frozen North.

Of the Eskimo dog I could write a book. In all probability descended from the wolf, it is the Eskimo's one domestic animal, but is of as much value to him as all the domesticated animals of more favored races put together, writes Commander Robert E. Peary, in Leslie's Monthly. It drags him and his family and their chattels from place to place, hauls to his door the meat of seals or walrus; leads him with unerring scent to the tiny orifice in the snow, which indicates the breathing hole of a seal; drags him for miles in pursuit of the bear, and finally brings the huge brute to bay; rounds up the musk-oxen till his master can come up for the kill, and then, perchance, in the darkness of some long winter night, when the hand of hunger grips the settlement relentlessly, he yields up his life to feed his master and his family, and his coat to keep them warm.

Though mixed now with other strains, so that black and reddish and spotted dogs are to be seen as well as the pure-blooded grays and whites, this animal still retains to a large degree the strength, endurance and fierce lust for blood when in pursuit of game that characterizes its wild ancestors. Combined with these traits are an intelligence and faithfulness that make many of these animals the peer of any of their more favored brothers in more genial climates.

ALMOST A NONDESCRIPT.

When a Second Lieutenant Gets Married His Standing with Superior Officers Suffers.

To the commanding officers, the married second lieutenant is almost a nondescript. There is never the interest felt in the youngster there would be if he were free or without domestic entanglement. From the start they know what his trials are to be. They know he has all he can do without having the attentions of higher officers directed to his struggles. They do not take the same interest in his advancement, because they know full well there is the weight of outside cares that will interfere with the single interest which every commanding officer desires in the career of the young officers, says Town Topics. It is enough that they learn first how to be soldiers without learning at the same time how to be husbands. They think one "boss" is enough for the little lieutenant. The orders of one are bound to conflict with the orders of the other. The military "boss" will not go to the domestic boss to see that orders are carried out, but the domestic boss never hesitates for a minute to go to the highest ranking general if she feels that her rights are trodden upon. It is sometimes very wonderful, the colossal courage of the young wife who is just learning military discipline. She dares to do and to say what the older campaigners never dream of doing or saying. And that is another block in the career of the infant officer.

It was learned to-day on the best authority that the plans of the Pennsylvania railroad for its new central station in the heart of Manhattan include the construction of a huge skyscraper hotel, which will probably be the biggest of the many grand hostelries projected in this city. "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after doctors had failed, and I want other girls to know about it. During menstruation I suffered most intense pain low in the abdomen and in my limbs. At other times I had a heavy, depressed feeling which made my work seem twice as hard, and I grew pale and thin. The medicine the doctor gave me did not do me one bit of good, and I was thoroughly discouraged. The doctor wanted me to stop work, but, of course, I could not do that. I finally began to take Lydia E. BAKED APPLE DUMPLINGS.

Peel and core as many apples
As your appetite may wish—
Six or eight—perhaps a dozen—
That would be a generous dish.
Make a dough like cracker biscuit,
Roll it thin—with skill and care;
Place an apple lightly on it—
Take your knife and cut it square—
Large enough to fold your fruit in
Then within the vacant place
Of the core, a bit of butter,
Cinnamon and sugar place.
Draw your square up well together,
Pinch it gently on the top,
So your dough will be protected,
Lest the cooking juices pop.
When your apples are all covered,
Take a fork and prick them through,
'Twill prove better in the baking—
Half a dozen times will do.
Bake them slowly, and, while cooking,
Take of sugar just a cup,
And a modest lump of butter—
And with light hand cream them up,
Adding extract and your hard sauce
Set on ice to harden more;
Life your apples from the oven,
And your labors will be o'er.
Serve them hot—the sauce adds flavor.
And each dumpling, firm and brown,
Is a practical achievement—
Adds a jewel to your crown.

RULES FOR VISITORS.

Guests at House Parties Have Certain Obligations Which Should Not Be Neglected.

Do not stay too long. It is much to break into the life of any family, even for a few days. Pay no attention to urgings to stay longer, however sincere they seem. Set a time to go when you arrive, and stick to it.

Conform absolutely to the household arrangements, especially as to times of rising, going to meals, and retiring. Be ready in ample time for all drives or other excursions.

Carry with you all needed toilet supplies, that you may not be obliged to mortify your host by pointing out possible deficiencies in the guest room, such as a clothes brush—the article most commonly lacking.

Enter heartily into all their plans for entertaining you, but make it plain that you do not care to be entertained all the time, or to have every minute filled with amusement.

Be ready to suggest little plans for pleasure when you see your host at a loss to entertain you. Try how well you can entertain him for a change. Turn about is fair play in visiting, as well as in everything else.

Be pleased with all things.

If you ever were brisk and sprightly, be so now.

Your high spirits and evident enjoyment are the only thanks your host wants.

Take some work with you, so that when your host has to work you may keep him in countenance by working also. More good times are to be had over work than over play, anyway.

Do not argue, or discuss, debatable matters. Few things leave a worse taste in the mouth.

Offer to pay the little incidental expenses that will be caused now and then by your visit; but merely offer—do not insist upon it, which would be very rude.—Woman's Life.

working design and the size of the book. The edges should be turned over and neatly overhanded down at the corners. One who is skillful with the brush may paint the pansies. Designs suitable for other books will suggest themselves to the worker.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Lemons in the Toilet.

Lemons are a necessary adjunct to every woman's toilet; besides their healthfulness, which is not to be questioned, they are also beautifiers. A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a cupful of warm water will remove all stains from the hands and will make the nails soft and pliable, rendering them easy to polish.

In Case of Frost Bite.

In cases of frost bite no warm air, warm water or fire should be permitted near the parts affected until the natural temperature is nearly restored. Rub gently the affected part with snow in a cold room, and make applications of ice water.

ARE CLOSELY LINKED.

Gov. and Mrs. La Follette of Wisconsin Are Business as Well as Life Partners.

A governor's wife of practical purposes and whose character presents many unusual features is Belle Case La Follette, matron of the executive mansion of the state of Wisconsin. She is 47 years old, of the same age as her husband, and her life has been linked with his, both in the practice of law and in his official and political career, in manner most unique. She became acquainted with Robert M. La Follette, the present governor, while the two were students in the college of letters and science of the University of Wisconsin at Madison back in the later seventies. They graduated together from the collegiate department in 1879 and that same year each took high honors in oratory. Miss Case won the Lewis prize for the best oration in a contest of eloquence and her future husband won the final oratorical contest of the university and later in the spring won in the intercollegiate contest. Miss Case graduated from the law department of the university two years later, attending the school part of the time with Mr. La Follette. They were married shortly after this and practiced law together, "Bob" doing the active work before the bar and "Belle" doing important service in briefing and consultation.

Mrs. La Follette is the founder of the Madison branch of the Emily Bishop league, a woman's club of which physical culture and dress reform are the purposes. She devotes a share of her time to this work. She is not overactive socially, gives few elaborate functions and goes to parties and balls only in a formal way, as the wife of the governor.

GENUINE EGG SHAMPOO.

A Formula for Making a Preparation That Is Absolutely Reliable and Sure to Please.

Many of the compounds called egg shampoos contain no eggs. They are generally a stiff soap paste, made up in substantially this fashion: Take four ounces of transparent soap, half an ounce of carbonate of potash, six ounces of water and two of glycerine. The soap should be coarsely powdered and mixed with water in which the carbonate of potash has already been dissolved. Heating over a fire hastens the melting of the soap. The glycerine should be mixed in last of all. If the composition is too firm on cooling, a little water may be added. A sample may be tested for this purpose before the whole batch has cooled. Perfume may be introduced, if it be wanted.

For a genuine egg shampoo the following formula is recommended by the New York Tribune:

Three fresh eggs, half an ounce of spirit of soap, 160 grains of carbonate of potash, 150 minims of ammonia water, two drops of rose oil, the same amount of bergamot oil, one drop of geranium oil, one of oil of bitter almonds, and 27 ounces of rosewater.

The eggs should be well whipped and mixed with the rosewater. The ammonia water, carbonate of potash and spirit of soap having first been combined, they may be added to the other fluid. The whole having been well stirred, the perfumes may be added. The volume of the latter will be so small that another vigorous stirring is essential to their thorough incorporation.

According to Your Means.

When people with small means are thrown in the way of wealthier acquaintances, always let it be with frankness. Putting on airs is detrimental to self-respect. A great deal of misery comes to people who are not able to make both ends meet. The effort to keep up appearances which are beyond one's income is a constant nervous strain, with which no sensible person should willingly burden himself. Much better say at once: "I cannot afford it."—American Queen.

Odors Made to Order.

The French industry of raising flowers for the manufacture of perfume has been greatly injured by the chemical odors and artificial ethereal oils produced in Germany, as the latter sell at a lower price and are hardly distinguishable from the genuine.

Powder Puff for Baby.

A small bunch of absorbent cotton makes a splendid powder puff for baby's morning bath, and is desirable, as it will be discarded for a fresh one oftener than a regular puff would be.

BRITISH "LEGACY" SERMONS.

A Singular Old-Time Custom Among the Churches of London and Smaller Towns.

The "Lion" sermon, recently preached at St. Katherine Cree church, in Leadenhall street, London, in commemoration of the escape of a seventeenth century lord mayor from the jaws of a lion, recalls the fact that there are quite a number of what may be called legacy sermons in existence.

The citizens of Durham hear every year what is known as the "Accession" sermon. It has been preached for scores of years on the day of the accession of the monarch on the throne. The discourse is delivered in the cathedral, and the preacher selected is only allowed a quarter of an hour for his sermonizing. For this he secures a fee of 16 guineas, says the London Mail.

The "Horticultural" sermon, as it is called, is delivered at Stepney. A benefactor of the church in the days when Stepney was not so densely populated as it is now was desirous that the claims of horticulture should be brought before the people at least once every year. Accordingly therefore a sermon dealing with the beauties of nature and the delights of gardening, and so on, is preached once every 12 months. The fee is provided by a special bequest.

An exceedingly curious and probably absolutely unique custom prevails in a little chapel near the remote village of Buckland Newton, in Dorchester. Once a year people come from miles round to hear the annual "Museum" sermon preached. A strange minister generally comes to preach this remarkably titled discourse, which takes its name from the very peculiar circumstances under which it is delivered. When he goes into the pulpit he finds on the desk in front of him several articles of various descriptions, but all of which are mentioned in the Bible.

He does not know what articles he is going to find beforehand, but is required to give an extempore discourse on the spur of the moment on the things which he sees, bringing in allusions and pointing out lessons from the various Biblical illustrations before him. It will be seen that the preacher would be in an extremely awkward dilemma if he did not know his Bible well.

The little flag-floored church at Downham, in Lancashire, possesses a unique record on account of the "Assheton" sermon. Two hundred and twenty-two sermons have been delivered within its walls from two texts. These two texts are Job 19., 25-26, and Col. 3, 3-4.

When Sir Ralph Assheton, the squire of Downham hall, died 222 years ago, he left a legacy of four pounds a year. Two pounds of it was to be distributed among the poor of the district. The other two pounds was to be paid each year to a different clergyman for preaching in Downham church from one of these two texts on the anniversary of the squire's death. The terms of the legacy have been faithfully carried out ever since.

GETTING THE BETTER OF MEN.

Women Nowadays Are Showing Their Superiority in the Matter of Health.

Either the women of the United States are growing healthier, or the men are growing less able to withstand disease, says the New York World.

Statistics prepared by the census office show that the percentage of deaths among males, as compared with the percentage among females, is increasing.

As there was a considerable decrease in the percentage of mortality in 1900 from that of 1890, it is probable that these interesting discoveries point to an improvement in the condition of women, a fact that is borne out by observation.

In the last ten years women have taken to athletics with a freedom and enthusiasm probably unequaled for centuries. There has been a radical movement toward dress reform, as well as a marked development toward hygienic living. Physical culture has become popular, and a greater knowledge of physiology has been disseminated.

The result of this is shown in the figures of the census office.

During the census year ending May 1, 1900, there were 1,059,094 deaths in the United States.

If these 551,611 were of males and 487,483 of females, an excess of male deaths of 64,128.

This is an increase of about a tenth of one per cent. It is not great, it is true, but statisticians consider it an important indication of this curious tendency of the times.

The excess of deaths by disease is about half of the total. Diseases of the nervous system, many caused by strain and overwork, show a large increase among men, whereas neurasthenia among women, the common form of female nervous trouble, is indicated to be less.

Heart disease, dropsy, and diseases of the urinary organs show considerable increase among men.

The excess of male deaths by accidents and injuries was 29,315, by suicide, 3,218; by alcoholism, 1,965, and by unknown causes, 2,097, a total of 36,595.

The male death rate in the registration area of the United States, which represents about 30,000,000 of population, was 19 and the female 16.6.

Big Crown Lands.

Among the great ground landlords in London the crown is one of the greatest, owning properties in various parts of the capital yielding in ground rents £460,000 per annum. Fifteen years ago the estates produce £230,000 only; but many leases have fallen in within that time, and the increased rents have been exacted for renewal fines or for new leases. The Carlton hotel is a striking instance of the increased value of ground in London. Formerly the site on which the hotel stands was held from the crown for a ground rent of £765 per annum; now £4,200 yearly has to be paid.—London Express.

HEALTHY WOMEN

Praise Pe-ru-na as a Cure for Colds and a Preventive of Catarrh.

MRS. M. J. BRINK

MISS SARA McGAHAN.

FIRST STAGE OF CATARRH

A Serious Mistake Which Thousands Are Making.

The first stage of catarrh is what is commonly known as "catching cold." It may be in the head, nose, throat or lungs. Its beginning is sometimes so severe as to cause a chill and considerable fever, or it may be so slight as to not hinder a person from his usual business. In perhaps a majority of cases little or no attention is paid to the first stage of catarrh, and hence it is that nearly one-half of the people have chronic catarrh in some form.

To neglect a cold is to invite chronic catarrh. As soon as any one discovers the first symptoms of catching cold he should at once begin the use of Peruna according to directions on the bottle, and the cold is sure to pass away without leaving any bad effects.

Unless this is done the cold is almost sure to end in the second stage of catarrh, which is making so many lives miserable. If Peruna was taken every time one has a cold or cough, chronic catarrh would be practically an unknown disease.

Miss Elizabeth Uber, No. 57 Bassett street, Albany, N. Y., writes:

"I have always dreaded unsettled weather because of my extreme liability to catch cold, when a catarrhal trouble would quickly develop through my entire system, which it would take weeks to drive away. I am thankful to say that since I have taken PERUNA I do not have any reason to dread this anymore. If I have been at all exposed to the damp, wet or cold weather, I take a dose or two of PERUNA, and throw out any hint of sickness from my system."—Miss Elizabeth Uber.

Mrs. M. J. Brink, No. 820 Michigan avenue, St. Joseph, Mich., writes:

"This past winter during the wet and cold weather I caught a sudden and severe cold, which developed a catarrhal condition through my entire system, and so affected my general health that I was completely broken down, and became nervous and hysterical and unfit to supervise my home. My physician prescribed for me, but somehow his medicine did me no good. Reading of PERUNA I decided to try it. After I had taken but three bottles I found myself in fine health."—Mrs. M. J. Brink.

Sibyl A. Hadley, 25 Main street, Huntington, Ind., writes: "Last winter after getting my feet wet I began to cough, which gradually grew worse until my throat was sore and raw. Ordinary remedies did not help me and cough remedies nauseated me. Reading an advertisement of what PERUNA could do, I decided to try a bottle, and you can imagine how glad I felt when it began to relieve me in a very short time. In less than two weeks I was completely cured."—Sibyl A. Hadley.

Miss Sarah McGahan, No. 197 3d street, Albany, N. Y., writes:

"A few months ago I suffered with a severe attack of influenza, which nothing seemed to relieve. My hearing became bad, my eyes became irritated and feverish. Nothing seemed right and nothing I ate tasted good. I took PERUNA and within two weeks I was perfectly well."—Sarah McGahan.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Insurance Has Its Humor.

An enterprising insurance agent induced an Irishman to take out an accident policy for his wife. A few days later, while conversing with a friend in his office, he was startled to see the Irishman rush in, brandishing fiercely a stout cane.

"Ye rascal!" he yelled, springing toward the agent, "ye wanter cheat me?"

Fortunately the enraged man was disarmed and held fast by the agent's friend, who was a powerfully built man. The Irishman, struggling to get free, shouted:

"Let me git at the spalpeen. Think av it, chargin' me fove dollars fer an accident ticket fer me ole woman, an' she jest broke her leg a-fallin' down stairs. Wot's the good of the ticket, anyhow?"—N. Y. Times.

Hunting Up Their Inheritance.

C. C. Hanks, of Campton, and Newton Townsend, of this place, left Tuesday morning for Lexington, where they yesterday morning purchased tickets for Muscogee, Indian Territory. "Lum" Hanks has for sometime been pushing the claims of the Wolfe county heirs to the estate of John Harper, the Choctaw Indian, who left an immense estate in lands and money, and he is sanguine of success in establishing the validity of the claims of the Wolfe county contingent, every one of whom carries in his or her veins more or less Choctaw blood of the Harper strain. Mr. Hanks last December took 39 claimants with him, and they all registered according to the requirements. Mr. Townsend is also an heir, and he accompanied Mr. Hanks on this occasion for the purpose of filing his claim. THE HERALD hopes that each and every one of the claimants may realize their fondest dreams in this matter and live long to enjoy their good fortune.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength."

Cal Davis Fatally Shot.

At Pryor's saw-mill, on the head of Stillwater, Friday night last, Martha Banks shot Cal Davis in the back, inflicting a wound that is thought to be fatal. She made her escape but was arrested Sunday.

Later.—Davis died at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, and on Wednesday the Banks woman, who has been in jail since her arrest on Sunday, was arraigned for trial before the county judge, J. W. Congleton, and the trial put off to Friday.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that the picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

Died, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Slimp, five miles southwest of Neosho, at 7 a. m. Feb. 28, 1903, Mrs. Elizabeth Stamper (grandmother of E. C. Coulter) age 79 years, 1 month, 24 days. Funeral from the Christian church, Neosho, Feb. 24, 2:30 p. m. Friends of the family invited.

More Riots.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly so grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the liver or kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nervine and the greatest all around medicine for run down systems. The Stomach Is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

No Mail From Campton Saturday.

Our Eighteenth Birthday.

Yesterday, 18 years ago, THE HERALD made its initial bow to the public. Some allowed that it might run six months, others did not grant it so long a life. But some there were who had confidence in the enterprise, and to those is mainly due its survival to the present time. It has proved its staying qualities, and now is the time to subscribe.

Death Rate Decreasing.

The 1900 census shows a decrease of 10 per cent in the general death rate. The decline in consumption is more marked than any other disease. Many causes are attributed, but it is safe to say that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds is responsible for this decline, to a large extent. Many a life has been saved by its use. There is nothing anywhere just as good for lung and throat troubles. It is positively guaranteed by J. Taylor Day, Hazel Green, and S. S. Combs & Sons, Campton, druggists. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.
